Dear Mr Mullan,

As CEO of the Energia Group, I am writing to you as interim Chairman of An Bord Pleanála (“ABP”) to highlight the impact on our business of ongoing delays to decisions for critically important infrastructure investments that have been with ABP for decision for an extended period of time.

This is the second time this year that I have written to ABP, the first being in relation to an appeal regarding a proposed substation and overhead line for a windfarm in Co. Monaghan – Ref. No. ABP-309906-21 (Reactivated case, Old No. ABP-305536-19). This particular appeal was before ABP for four years, inclusive of a judicial review challenge, and the extended delay resulted in this windfarm being unable to proceed to construction as the windfarm consents had expired. This windfarm project will therefore no longer contribute to national renewable targets.

As a leading energy provider and infrastructure investor, Energia Group is fully aware of the administrative challenges to building new energy infrastructure in Ireland, however, continuing delays to decisions by ABP will put the projects named herein at risk, impacting continued inward investment to Ireland, economic growth and jobs. It is also important to note that these projects will also a) secure the future of an important Dublin power station which is needed to support Ireland’s increasing electricity generation requirements; b) deliver significant transmission infrastructure helping alleviate the electricity network constraints in north Dublin making the network more resilient to faults; and c) not impact national renewable targets as the data centre will be operated on a net zero carbon basis.

The data centre appeal has now been with ABP for 72 weeks, more than 1 year since a decision was due (19/09/2022), and the matter has been with the ABP Board awaiting decision for over 30 weeks. The linked electrical substation application has been with ABP for 105 weeks. I am aware of the many demands on ABP and will continue to advocate for the necessary resources to be made available to allow the
