Hi Muiriosa,

That's correct. It reflects the documentation submitting during the Oral Hearing, along with the updated Book of Reference which we submitted in mid-June 2024.

It's not that the documentation is different to what the Board already has – it's not. It's that our index and pagination for the hard copies will make it considerably easier for the public to navigate this, if they choose to inspect this in hard copy at the Board's office (and that this reflects what is also at the other locations for consistency of approach). It's really to pre-empt any potential issues/concerns being raised by members of the public.

Kind regards,

Claire

Hi Claire

Can I just confirm that the documentation you wish to submit is a duplication of information submitted at the Oral hearing only?

Dear Eimear,

Thank you for taking my call earlier. We note that you already have a hard copy of the Oral Hearing Documents (which were submitted over the course of the Oral Hearing), together with a copy of the updated Book of Reference which we submitted to you in mid-June 2024. You have advised that you do not wish to receive our newly printed copy, which is due to be delivered on Fri 16 August at circa 10am.

We have printed out hard copies for display in a number of other locations, and these are paginated and indexed for ease of the public's review. Our updated website also mirrors the structure of how this hard copy documentation is presented. In our view, a consistency of approach for how the hard copy material is presented at each of the five locations is important, and will guard against any charge by a member of the public about uncertainty or variations in presentation. Most importantly, a uniformity of approach will ensure ease of review for the public, particularly as this relates to the index, pagination, presentation and navigation of this documentation. This is particularly the case, as our index provides further guidance to the public on what is in "screen-readable" format, what documents were superseded by others during the Oral Hearing and it also cross references other relevant items. In our view, the newly printed copies, with index and pagination, will make the review process easier for the public to manage at your offices.

We would therefore ask that the Board accommodate this request, and facilitate the delivery of this documentation to you on Friday.

We look forward to hearing from you.

Kind regards,

Claire Cunneen
