Meath County Council Response to An Bord Pleanála regarding a Section 37L application at Tromman, Rathmoylan

Quarry Reference number: QY75

Owner: John Keegan c/o Keegan Quarries, Longwood Rd., Trim

Site Location: Tromman, Rathmoylan, Co. Meath.

Development Description: The extension and continuation of extraction of limestone using blasting and drilling methods.

Technical Description Existing Operations:

The quarry site is located within the townland of Tromman, Rathmoylan, Co. Meath. The site is contained within folio number MH27352F which is registered to John Keegan, c/o Keegan Quarries, Longwood Rd., Trim, Co. Meath. Current quarrying operations are carried out on a section of the site approx. 8.5 Ha in area. There is also a concrete block manufacturing facility located to the North of the site. The quarry is used for extraction of limestone rock using blasting and drilling techniques and extraction is currently carried out on different levels or benches. The existing operation is dewatered using pumps on the bench floor which discharges to a local stream under a discharge license Ref 04/2. The existing quarry was registered under S261 of Planning & Development Act 2000 -2011 and has a quarry reference number QY 75.

Technical Description Proposed Operations:

The application for the continuation and further development of the site proposes to continue quarrying activities over an area of approx. 14.3 Ha at a similar rate to the existing operation of 250,000 tonnes per annum. The applicant proposes to complete this work in 4 No. phases, starting initially at the south of the site and moving in a Northerly direction to complete all works to a new depth of 13m AOD. The application also contains proposals for decommissioning the site plant and restoration plan for the entire site once the extraction has been completed, where the quarry void will be allowed fill with water to form a lake at a top water level of 65m AOD. The proposed new quarry benches will require dewatering and the applicant proposes to use the existing discharge point.

Other Comments:

The quarry site for this application is in close proximity to neighbouring quarry operated by Kilsaran Ltd.
